It's Christmas!

It was that time of the year again—Christmas. During this time of year, Margery always felt left out and different. At school, they would do all kinds of Christmas-related things. Her friends would exchange Christmas cards and gifts. They would even bring gifts for their teacher. And the worst thing was when her teacher would gather everyone around her and open up the gifts she received from all her students—all except Margery. But Margery's parents and her RE teachers have told her that she shouldn't celebrate Christmas because Jesus was not born on Christmas Day. Plus, the Bible doesn't tell us to remember Jesus' birthday. However, Margery liked Christmas; she liked the presents and cards, the Christmas trees, the lights and all the fun things that people ate and did on Christmas. Margery wondered why celebrating Christmas was so wrong.

Discussion Questions

- 1. Do you think it is wrong for Margery to celebrate Christmas? Why?
- 2. What may help Margery overcome/accept her feelings of being different and left out?
